LATER FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Steamers Asia and Empress.

PACIFIC ASPECT OF EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

Completion of the Italian Organization.

The Cunard steamer Asia reached her dock last evening at 6 o'clock. She left Liverpool at 11 o'clock A. M. on the 26th, and brings advices one week later than had been previously received.

The steamer Empress, Captain Jamieson, which sailed from Liverpool on the 29th ultimo for the coaling of Her Majesty's ship, the 17th of January, arrived here last night. The news brought by the Empress was anticipated by the Asia.

The steamship Persia arrived at Southampton about noon, on the 31st ult.

The United States frigate Susquehanna was at Alexandria on the 6th of January.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Times says that a ministerial journal was about to be started for the purpose of bringing forward measures for the protection of British property in Mexico.

Mr. Bernal, as Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, had addressed the usual circular to the Parliamentary members, calling on them to be in attendance at the opening of the session for the 31st of January.

Miss Sarah G. Bagley, a "factory lady" of Salem, Mass., had delivered a strong Anti-Slavery lecture, before a crowded audience, at Liverpool. The Rev. W. H. Channing presided, and introduced the lady, who was received with much enthusiasm.

The steamer Edward C. Kingston, Captain Jamieson, which sailed from Liverpool on 15 ultimo on the morning of Wednesday, the 19th of January, arrived here last night. The news brought by the Kingston was anticipated by the Asia.

The steamship Persia arrived at Southampton about noon, on the 31st ult.

The United States frigate Susquehanna was at Alexandria on the 6th of January.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Times says that a ministerial journal was about to be started for the purpose of bringing forward measures for the protection of British property in Mexico.

Mr. Bernal, as Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, had addressed the usual circular to the Parliamentary members, calling on them to be in attendance at the opening of the session for the 31st of January.

Miss Sarah G. Bagley, a "factory lady" of Salem, Mass., had delivered a strong Anti-Slavery lecture, before a crowded audience, at Liverpool. The Rev. W. H. Channing presided, and introduced the lady, who was received with much enthusiasm.

Mrs. Wordsworth, widow of the poet, died at Rydal Mount, on the 17th of January, having reached the venerable age of 88 years.

There is little news of importance beyond the assertion that the forces of war were increasing. The Paris Bourse advanced to 70 for 3 per cents. money, and 95 for 4½ per cents.

Another powerful article in the Constitutionnel says: Austria has issued a circulatory note on the Servian question, which will occasion the calming of the public mind. This article caused an advance of a half per cent. on the Bourse. Notwithstanding the gentle turn of events, there were still contradictory and warlike rumors in circulation.

A letter from the English Foreign Office says that the British Minister at Washington will be instructed to urge the American Government to open the coasting trade to British vessels, in return for like concessions by Britain. It is reported that Parliament will be asked for a considerable increase in the Naval estimates.

MR. SPURGEON'S VISIT TO AUSTRIA.

The London Times has the following paragraph concerning Mr. Spurgeon's intended visit to this country:

"The alleged assumptions by Mr. Spurgeon of the sum of £10,000 (?) in payment of his engagement with the Transatlantic showmen is contradicted by the Daily News, on the authority of Mr. Spurgeon himself, who 'declares the offer.' Mr. Spurgeon purposes to visit all these shores shortly, but not on the terms above referred to."

This decision is highly creditable to Mr. Spurgeon's good sense. We believe it is true that a gentleman went out expressly to make him the offer referred to, in the belief that the large sum proposed would be underwritten by the sale of tickets. Such a scheme, if carried out, would have reflected no credit upon our religious public, or upon Mr. Spurgeon. It would have been the culmination of that tendency to speculate in religious excitement, and to convert prayer meetings into theatrical spectacles, which the events of the last year have so decidedly encouraged, and would have been highly injurious to the cause it was designed to advance. Mr. Spurgeon will be received with éclat here, as the most popular preacher of the day in England. In our judgment, however, he will utterly fail to satisfy the curiosity which will welcome his coming. We have many clergymen of our own doubtless his superiors in all the elements of popular and effective pulpit eloquence.

Her Majesty will open Parliament in person. According to present arrangements the Queen and the Prince Consort, and Court propose leaving Windsor Castle on Wednesday, the 2d proximo, for Buckingham Palace.

Her Majesty's Government have resolved to comply with the prayer which both Houses of Parliament presented in their last session, and abolish all the Services for the State Holidays, with the exception of that appointed for the Anniversary of her Majesty's Accession. A Royal Warrant under the Sign Manual, revokes the authority under which the "Form of Prayer with Thanksgiving for the deliverance of King James from the Gunpowder Plot, the "Form of Prayer with Fasting" on the commemoration of the "Martyrdom of Charles I.; and the "Form of Prayer with Thanksgiving" for the "unspeakable mercy wonderfully completed" in the restoration of King Charles II., have hitherto been used on the 5th of November, the 30th of January, and the 29th of May. The use of these services in the churches and chapels of the Establishment, whether parochial or collegiate, will henceforth be illegal, as violating the Act of Uniformity, and is moreover expressly forbidden by the new Warrant, and the prayers themselves are not henceforth to be printed and published with or annexed to the Prayer-book.

DEATH OF MRS. WORDSWORTH.

The widow of the poet WORDSWORTH died at Rydal Mount, near Ambleside, on Monday night last, the 17th. She had reached beyond the age of fourscore years, and passed away tranquilly after a short illness. She was the great attraction to her home in all the months it gave to the public, that she was one of the most prominent member of the literary world, though a silent one. Her life was long, and it was as pure, beautiful and useful as the most ardent admirer of English domestic character could imagine. The poet could not have been blessed with a household companion more meet for him; and, better still, the poet knew and felt the blessing he possessed in such a companion:

> "A perfect woman, nobly planned,
> To warn, to comfort, and command;
> And yet a spirit still, and bright,
> With something of angelic light."

For some years past Mrs. Wordsworth's powers of sight had entirely failed her, but she still continued cheerful and "bright," and full of conversational power unto former days. Quiet as her life was, there are few scenes of literary note to whom she was not known, for the poet was the friend for the many.

THE ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY.

A meeting of the shareholders in this undertaking was held, to consider the present condition and future prospects of the company.

Mr. Lewis occupied the chair, and opened the business of the meeting by observing upon the desirability of the shareholders meeting together and endeavoring to elicit authentic information with regard to the condition of their property. He was in possession of all the publications issued by the company from its formation, and, as far as he was in a condition to form an opinion, there was no more reason for the 50th shares being now at a discount of 50 per cent. than there was for their being at one time at a premium of 50 per cent. The total expenditure on account of contracts had amounted to £22,701,000, which gave an interest of 4½ per cent per mile of £6,726. The loss upon the issue of bonds was equal to £750 per mile. There was then the interest upon the steamers and boats, amounting to £2,313,000, making the entire cost of the line, including rolling stock, £30,000,000, or £8,201 per mile. Against this the receipts from traffic up to the 31st December, 1857, were £8,813,000, and from boat sold £1,373,000; working expenses £4,000,000. So that the profit derived from the working of the line, and the sale of the boats amounted to £5,186,000. If those were to be deducted from the actual cost, the charge to be sustained would amount to £20,000,000. This, however, would not be an extravagant sum per mile, as the cost of the Western Railway of Massachusetts was £13,000 per mile; that of the New-York and Erie, £16,000; that of the Michigan, £10,000; and that of the New-York Central, £15,000. The liabilities of the Illinois Central on the 1st May, 1858, as per Mr. Fuller's report, amounted to £2,961,000, but they had assets in the current of £600,000, leaving due by the Company £2,361,000. They had then to provide the September interest on the funded debt, £161,000, and the interest upon the sum-total of bonds, &c., making a total of £2,521,000. There would also be the cost of construction (maintenance of way) during the year, which might be taken at £650,000. This would give £3,071,000 as the charge upon this account. Against this, a call of £20 per share would realize £3,500,000. The average profit receipts upon the traffic for the last three years showed an average of £705,000. The annual interest amounted to £1,751,000. So that the calls upon the shareholders should not exceed £600,000 per annum, or, with the estimate for contingencies, £800,000. Under these circumstances, he thought that a call, with the proceeds of the land sales, would suffice to meet all payments. Supposing, however, that the line would realize as good a price as the land already sold, that source alone would produce a capital of £25,000,000.

A Shareholder said that in that case the railway would be given to the shareholders for nothing.

The Chairman said that would be no prejudice, if the estimates supplied by the Company could be accepted as correct. There could be no doubt but that three sections of the lines were carried on at a loss; at the same time it should be remembered that seven sections were worked at a profit, and that although the through traffic did not seem to be very remunerative, the general traffic returns showed an improvement. Where roads received agricultural affairs improved there could be no doubt but that the carrying trade of the States would receive an enormous impetus.

A Shareholder said that on the Baltimore and Ohio Railway a greater quantity of flour was carried last year than in any previous period. This showed that the want of traffic on the Illinois line arose from want of progress.

The Chairman said the traffic was not so large from wheat as might be expected, and that in fact only one fourth was derived from this source; the remainder was made up from iron, minerals, groceries, dry goods and lumber.

A Shareholder inquired what effect the opening of the New-York and Cairo line was likely to have on the traffic of the Illinois.

The Chairman said that the Cairo line must be productive of profit to their line.

After some desultory discussion it was arranged that no formal resolutions should be moved, but that means should be taken to obtain further information from the Company with respect to what prices the lands produced in proportion to their distance from the line, what portions were sold, at what rate per ton the goods were carried, and other points, without which it was impossible to form a just idea of the future prospects of the undertaking.

The meeting then separated.

THE LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Friday Evening.

The stock market opened this morning at a decline of more than ¼ @ cent., and has shown continued dullness throughout the day. The only transactions in Consols have been at 95⅝ to 95¾ for money and account. Notwithstanding the heaviness on this side, the quotations at the commencement of the Paris Bourse this morning show a slight improvement.

One of the causes operating unfavorably on the market to-day has been the announcement of the negotiations already commenced for a new Austrian loan. The dull feeling is also increased by sales which are attributed to Messrs. Rothschilds.

Foreign stocks have been heavy and without change, except a decline in Turkish Scrip. The last price was 3 to 4¼ discount. Chilian is at 2 to 1¾ discount.

Railway shares, after a few fluctuations, closed firm at a general decline. Lombardo-Venetian, which were last quoted, yesterday, 1¾ to 1¾ premium, receded to 1¼@1½; and the new shares to ⅝@⅞ premium.

There were no gold operations at the Bank to-day.

The Corn market, this morning, was without change.

The Fulton has arrived from America with £14,000 for England, and £82,600 for France.

The Directors of the National Bank have declared a dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 6 ₰ cent. per annum, with a bonus of 15s. a share, making the total dividend for 1858 12 ₰ cent.

A meeting of the Unity Bank took place this morning, under the Presidency of Alderman MECHI. The progress of the Bank during the past half year was considered satisfactory, the accounts showing a profit of £615, whereas on previous occasions there has been a uniform loss. The proceedings were chiefly of a congratulatory character, and terminated with the usual vote of thanks.

FRANCE.

THE MARRIAGE OF PRINCE NAPOLEON—THE RUMORED RENT—STATEMENT OF PERSIGNY—THE WAR FEELING AND PACIFIC VIEWS—MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says:

"In spite of the less warlike aspect of affairs for two or three days past, we are still told that the preparations are continued, and that at the war-office here few or none breathe a doubt of hostilities for the Spring. But, as the fact of the preparations at Toulon is too patent to be denied, they are intended, it is said, for Senegal, Algeria, and China. Confidence in the maintenance of peace appears to be returning slowly and uncertainly."

The Débats, in alluding to the settlement of the diplomatic difficulty with Austria, in regard to Servia, says:

"As the question of Servia has now been brought to nought, there are excellent reasons for trusting in the preservation of general peace."

The steam engines at Vincennes were still at work manufacturing rifled cannon.

On the 19th ultimo, the semi-official Patrie contained an article to the effect that the avoidance of war was not to be considered altogether certain. This, coupled with a false report that an insurrection had broken out at Milan and Venice, and an equally unfounded rumor of a collision between Austrian and Sardinian troops, caused a reaction on the Bourse, and a considerable portion of the previous improvement was lost—the decline of the day being equal to ¼ per cent. On the following day the market was more steady, and closed at a fractional improvement.

On Friday, the 21st, the Bourse opened firm and animated at 69 35@69 40 for the 3 per cents. Subsequently the market became heavy in spite of a rumor that Count WALEWSKI had written a conciliatory note, and prices declined to 69 00 for both money and account, at which figures the market closed very flat.

It was asserted that an alliance offensive and defensive had been concluded between France and Sardinia.

Accounts had been received from Algeria of the success of the expedition sent against the insurgent tribes, who had made a complete submission.

A large (number of steamers and transports were preparing for sea in French ports.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald says that confidence in the maintenance of peace appeared to be daily losing ground, and that the warlike preparations continued on a scale of great magnitude. The French garrison at Rome is shortly to be reinforced by two regiments of the line. Notwithstanding the assurances of peace, the Daily News Paris correspondent asserts his belief that there was no change whatever in the situation.

Correspondence of the London News.

PARIS, Tuesday, Jan. 18, 1859.

Rumors circulate in the house of some future aggrandizement to Italy, the influence of the Emperor of the French, and the aforesaid [illegible] one to have, it is said, that the King of Sardinia did not [illegible] and some difficulty. When the matter was first broken to [illegible] was received with much coldness by surprise as the public has been so long that it was concluded.

The uncertainty of affairs in France, the possibility of future changes for nothing is impossible—and the inconvenience that might arise to the Orleans, owing to a variety of causes too numerous to be detailed, were urged. Of the sentiments of the Princess Clotilde nothing is said. A refusal on her part was, I dare say, never taken into account. The connection with the Imperial family of France will doubtless be compensated by future advantages, and this ambition may reconcile the Piedmontese Ireasons to her new condition. The Prince is intelligent and liberal, and, so far as this ought to have weight, he is the son of a father who was a King, and of a mother who was of royal race.

The rumor circulates again to-day of the probable accession of M. de FIGANIÈRE to office, as Minister of Foreign Affairs. Some days ago the same report prevailed, and, as it indicated a pacific policy, and, consequently, the maintenance of the alliance with England, it was well received here particularly when, in spite of a good deal of wild talk, that alliance is considered necessary to this country. But I believe the rumor to be unfounded, not only for the reasons previously alleged but also from the fact that, even with the difficulties actually existing, the Government cannot dissociate itself from those who exercise so much influence on public affairs, and who have been the source of blunders since the conclusion of peace in 1856.

In spite of the less warlike aspect of affairs for two or three days past, we are still told that the preparations are continued, and that at the War Office here few or none breathe a doubt of hostilities for the Spring. But, as the fact of the preparations at Toulon is too patent to be denied, they are intended, it is said, for Senegal, Algeria, and China. Confidence in the maintenance of peace appears to be returning slowly and uncertainly. There are some things that would render war improbable. The evidence is conflicting, but it is some ground of hope that war is unpopular in France, and I am assured that even the leader of the army are not those who are the least opposed to it.

An official article in the Constitutionnel announces the termination of the diplomatic difficulty excited by the projected intervention of Austria in Servian politics.

NAPLES.

The amnesty, lately granted to sundry political prisoners in Naples, had been so modified as to require their banishment to America. An edict provides that all persons taken in any flagrant attempt against the safety of the State shall be immediately tried by a Council of War.

On Thursday, the 20th, a telegram announced that the King of Naples was seriously ill, and on the following day the London Morning Post published a dispatch from its Paris Correspondent, stating that a telegram announcing the death of the King of Naples had just reached Paris from Vienna. And announcing that the King died on the morning of the 20th. No other journal had the news, and the report still lacked confirmation when the Asia left Liverpool. The leading article of the Post said:

"Death has quieted his busy corruption in the dungeons of Naples to strike at the door of the palace. FERDINAND the Second expired yesterday. The telegram comes with a sudden shock. The King is ill—the King is dead. Such are its rapid announcement. He was but 49 years of age. He is struck down in the prime of life—in the plenitude of despotism—at a moment when his eldest son, the Duke of CALABRIA, was on the point of celebrating an auspicious marriage."

BANISHMENT OF POERIO AND HIS COMPANIONS TO THE UNITED STATES.

From the London Times.

NAPLES, Saturday, Jan. 15.

The marriage of the Hereditary Prince of the Two Sicilies has been inaugurated by a decree promising liberty, and by another decree establishing Councils of War for the trial of persons acting against the Internal tranquillity of the State, and taken in the fact. It was communicated in private to the prisoners of Montesarchio last Sunday, and to the persons confined in the other prisons in the same way. The intention to transport them to a foreign and a distant country was protested against by the prisoners, and the protest, as I hear, was sent to His Majesty, but all in vain. Before leaving Caserta the Royal will was intimated, that before the return of the King all the political prisoners should be sent out of the kingdom. To-morrow, then, in all probability, Poerio and his companions will have passed from Montesarchio, as a distance from Naples, to Pozzuoli, where they will be permitted to see their friends before leaving. The Firmness and another steamer, which has had her guns taken out of her, will touch at Pozzuoli and take these unhappy men on board. After ten years in prison and in irons, under the deceptive and lying tale of a commutation of punishment, these men will be forcibly and illegally taken out of their country, and transported to a distance of several thousand miles from their homes! I am told that their destination will be the United States, and there is a reason for believing this as a matter of courtesy the Neapolitan Government has communicated its intentions to the Minister of the United States, who, as the Minister of a free country, is not in a position to enter into a treaty with any other State either to receive or reject emigrants. Perhaps this is a fact of which it will be difficult to persuade the Neapolitan Government, but such information as Mr. CHANDLER could communicate he, doubtless, has communicated. As to the existence of the Provincial Commission in New-York and other commissions which watch over the state of the emigrants, I do not know whether I may rely upon an impression that I have received from a person affecting to be well-informed, but, if so, the Neapolitan Government will not allow its subjects to be a burden on the Government of the United States. I state these things from a desire to be strictly impartial, though I do not see that, even if true, they can alter the state of things, or convert what I cannot but consider a violation of law and right into a generous or politic act. I need not say that the prisoners of Montesarchio are in a deplorable state of mind on finding that after 10 years in prison and in irons they are to be transported to the States of America—some broken down in health, some penniless, most leaving friends behind them. The friends of humanity anticipate a warm and generous reception for these outcasts from their native land among the free citizens of the United States. They will doubtless make every effort to alleviate their sufferings, but still the act of the Government is the same; it is violent—it is cruel—it is illegal. Poerio and his friends wear their chains up to this hour. The commutation of their punishment was read to them on the 9th inst., and was signed on the 27th of December, notwithstanding which, by the express order of the Inspector General of the Bagnio, they have not been relieved of their chains. Hence, by a special act of grace, has been permitted to return to Munich, there to reside with his wife's friends. If I have spoken strongly of the treatment of the 91 condemned prisoners named in the act of grace, what shall I say of the deportation of a hundred men or more, confined in Santa Maria Apparente, to America—of men who have never been even interrogated by a Police Inspector, or tried or condemned? With equal right the authorities might sweep the streets of Naples, and send of all whom they might find into forcible exile. What have the prisoners in Santa Maria Apparente done? Nothing. There is not a charge against them, and yet they will be taken and put on board a vessel, and sent, at this inclement season, across the Atlantic. It is needless to say that the impression produced on all minds here by what is being done, is of the most painful kind; and the consequence remotely will be fraught with danger. There is a general disgust felt at the acts of the Government; and what ought to be a season of rejoicing is, to say the truth, a season of apprehension and mourning.

SARDINIA.

Prince NAPOLEON continued at Turin. He had held a review of 1,000 veterans of the Grand Army. Among the patriotic shouts by the veterans and the crowd assembled were "Vive l'Alliance!" (the alliance) and "Vive Italie!"

The preparations for the marriage of Prince NAPOLEON (says a Paris letter, in the Indépendance of Brussels) are going on actively. The corbeille of the young bride more particularly excites curiosity. A dress and shawls of Alençon lace of great value; three India shawls of extraordinary beauty; and the diamonds of the Princess CATHERINE of Würtemberg, which were stolen in 1815, but afterwards found or repurchased by the family, will form some of the objects composing the marriage offering of the prince. A magnificent diamond necklace is spoken of as a present from the Empress, and some blue fox and other valuable furs from the Princess MATHILDE.

The Chamber of Deputies had commenced the discussion respecting the modification of the law concerning the National Guard.

The Turin correspondent of the Times asserts that the belief in coming war was decidedly on the increase.

Subjoined is the address of the Chamber of Deputies of Turin, agreed to on the 15th, in reply to the speech from the throne:

"SIRE: The Chamber of Deputies, animated by your approbation and your counsels, hastens to return you those thanks which are alone worthy of you, by seconding vigorously and unanimously the elevated designs which you have matured for the good of the nation. The measures which your Majesty has announced for the reorganizing the magistracy and for giving greater strength to provincial and communal liberty are to us a new pledge of the wisdom with which your Majesty knows how to reconcile a firm discipline in civil matters with the rights of liberty. Such wisdom will certainly be more than ever necessary in the grave and difficult times which have of late perhaps become more aggravated, and for which you have thought it to prepare us, by exhorting us to hope well for our country, and to draw a happy augury for the future. You have a right, Sire, to look hopefully at what may chance to come, for your people, in pondering over the important events of the last ten years, know by experience that your voice has never misled them, even when, a prey to grief, you recommended resignation, or asked for sacrifices the necessity of which was not at first apparent. At present, Sire, your voice, influential and respected among all civilized nations, magnanimously expressing pity for the woes of Italy, will certainly revive the memory of the solemn promises which have as yet remained without fulfilment, and at the same time will tend to calm down blind impatience, and will uphold among the populations a firm confidence in the irresistible force of civilization and the power of public opinion. If these consolatory thoughts and this appeal to public reason were to draw down perils or menaces on your sacred head, the nation—which venerates in you its sincere and straightforward prince, and looks on you as the powerful intercessor with the various European Cabinets for the cause of liberty—which beholds all the anger of factions give way before the great example of your fidelity—which knows that in you and by you at last has been found the secret, lost for so many centuries, of Italian concord—the nation, we say, will to a man range themselves round your person, and show that they have again learned the ancient art of uniting the obedience of the soldier to the liberty of the citizen."

The reading of this address was greeted with the loudest cheers from every part of the Chamber, and even the Ministerialists themselves are said to have been surprised at the unanimity displayed.

ITALY.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News has obtained confirmation of the report that the Pope's nuncio has received orders to tell the Emperor that if a cannon is fired in Lombardy he will take refuge in Vienna.

Vienna Bourse firm and considerably higher. Accounts from Lombardy still speak of disaffection, but of no outbreak. Austrian reinforcements continued to pour in.

A letter from Rome, of the 7th, states that for two years the Papal Government has been demanding the departure of the French and Austrian armies of occupation, considering their presence unnecessary, and being desirous of reducing the war budget, which amounts to 11,000,000 francs for 16,000 men, while in Tuscany 17,000 men cost only 8,000,000 francs, the difference being attributable to the troops of occupation.

According to the advices from Rome, Lord BRADFORD en RECEIVED was received by the Pope in a private audience, which was of very long duration. His lordship will soon return to London.

It is stated that the Austrians will declare a state of siege in the States of the Church.

LOMBARDY.

The Official Gazette of Milan had published an article endeavoring to weaken the sensation produced by an article in the Austrian Gazette, which announced a system of terror for the Lombardo-Venetian kingdom.

The accounts from Milan are far less exciting than of late, and it is asserted that the sensation of collision was never so bad as has been represented. Letters from reliable authorities assert that there was not the least chance of an insurrection. The story of collusion intervening with the people and inducing Prince FIRANDOLA and others of a like nature, are pronounced to be fictions.

It was reported that the sending of troops from Austria had been suspended on account of the apparent tranquility which prevailed.

The anti-Cigar demonstrations continued in the streets of Milan.

The commandant of the Austrian troops had asked the municipality of Ferrara to provision the citadel, but the municipality refused.

AUSTRIA.

Negotiations were to be immediately commenced in the London Money market for a loan of about £4,000,000 sterling for the Austrian Government. Baron BRUNNOW, who visited England six years ago on a similar mission, was on his way from Vienna to London. The rate of interest is stated at 5 per cent.

The statements by German papers of a coming interview between the Emperors of France and Austria were considered in Paris as unworthy of credit.

The leading journals of Germany were exceedingly violent in their attacks on the French Government, and urged the necessity of a perfect understanding between Prussia, Austria and the German States.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Times says that in Southern Germany there has not been such a political ferment since 1813. Popular demonstrations of sympathy and loyalty were taking place wherever the Emperor's father appeared in public.

The Austrian Government had requested Tuscany to assist the Austrian forces with men and money in case of war. The Tuscan Ministers were divided in opinion.

PRUSSIA.

Count DE HATZFELDT, the Prussian Minister at Paris, died at Berlin on the 19th.

The Prussian Budget exhibits a considerable increase in the expenditures caused by the proposed development of the navy and the increased expenditure for the crown. No new tax, however, would be necessary.

SWITZERLAND.

The Swiss National Council had voted a credit of half a million in order to change immediately the guns of the whole Federal infantry into arms of percussion.

The National Council, after a very animated discussion, had rejected by a great majority the appeal of the Government of Geneva against the decision of the Federal Council concerning the Italian refugees.

THE IONIAN ISLANDS.

Late advices from Corfu state that Sir JOHN YOUNG had summoned the Ionian Parliament for the 25th. Mr. GLADSTONE would open it as Provisional Lord High Commissioner. Hopes were expressed that, of the 40 deputies, 27 would be in favor of reform alone, without union with Greece.

Later advices from Corfu state that Mr. GLADSTONE had called together the deputies. The journals were publishing details of this conference. All the deputies asked for the revival of the treaties of 1815, and for the connection of the Ionian Islands to Greece. They all likewise refused to examine the proposed reforms, before a solution of the pending question.

TURKEY.

Advices from Constantinople of the 15th ultimo, state that the reports of an approaching war had caused a panic on the Bourse. The Journal de Constantinople had published a tranquillizing article.

The disturbances in the provinces surrounding Bagdad are reported to have become more serious.

MAHAI PACHA, the general commanding at Ronstonk, and the second son of RASCHID PACHA, has just perished accidentally. He was taking a drive in an open carriage, when the horses dashed off at a furious rate, and the General was thrown out. He fell under the wheels of a heavily laden cart, which passed over his body and killed him on the spot. He was the brother of ALI GHALIB PACHA, who was lately drowned in the Bosphorus.

The Journal de Constantinople, of the 12th instant, publishes an article stating that new conflicts have arisen between the Kainacans, asserting that the state of affairs is particularly grave in Moldavia, and regretting deeply that the elections had not been adjourned.

Private letters announce that the disturbances in the provinces surrounding Bagdad become more serious. MAHMOUD BEY will not return to Paris as ambassador.

INDIA.

The Bombay mail of Dec. 24 reached England on the 19th January. The correspondence adds little of moment to the telegraphic dispatch already published.

The news from Oude shows that the work of pacification was nearly completed.

The Times correspondent says that NANA SAHIB, forced to flight from Churde, thirty miles north of Baralich, had fled to a jungle fort northwest of that place.

A telegram of Bombay news of Dec. 24 unimportant. The subjugation of the disturbed districts was rapidly progressing. ISMAEL KHAN, a rebel chief, had surrendered. Details of China news speak of short supplies and an advance in teas.

The defeat of TANTIA TOPEE by Brigadier PARKE was very decided. The enemy fought well, and sustained great loss. The rapidity with which TANTIA moved served to harrass the British troops.

No serious disturbances were expected from any quarter except Talamon, where a large number of Sepoys had shut themselves up. Other leaders, with their troops, were expected to join them.

The Bombay money market continued tight, and the Bank had raised its rate of discount 2 per cent. during the fortnight.

A large business was doing in Cotton goods, at advancing prices. Exchange, 2s. 1d.@2s. 1¼d.

FREIGHTS—Cotton to London, 20s ₰ ton; Liverpool, 15s.

RUSSIA.

A striking incident which occurred at Moscow is thus narrated in a letter, dated

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.

"A circumstance has just occurred at Moscow which has caused a very great sensation, not only in the capital, but in a great part of the Empire. The students of the University of Moscow hissed one of their Professors who had displeased them. The academic authorities resolved to punish the guilty, and gave orders to arrest those who had commenced the disturbance. In consequence of this resolution three hundred students waited on the Dean and requested him to strike their names off the list of students of the University. This tumultuous manifestation gave a more serious character to the affair. The President of the College immediately apprised the Minister of Public Instruction of what had occured. At Moscow this movement was described as a political insurrection, but the Government was not alarmed by these reports. Such an incident would, under the previous reign, have become a gold mine for commissions of inquiry, and would have caused show ers of decorations to fall on the zealous functionaries. When the Emperor ALEXANDER heard of what had occurred he merely sent M. KOWALEWSKI, the Minister of Public Instruction, and the Dean of St. Petersburg to Moscow. When these dignitaries arrived there they acted with the greatest moderation, in conformity with the Instructions of the Emperor, and made a report representing the affair as a schoolboy's riot, and not an affair of State. The Minister recommended the students who had quitted the College to return, and gave them eight days to consider. During this period their passion cooled, and on the fifth day 160 students returned to the College. The others soon followed their example, and the Minister expelled only a few of the ringleaders. The Emperor has, by a ukase, organized a Railway Committee, to consider and report on all questions connected with railroads in Russia. The Committee, over which Count NESSELRODE is to preside, is composed of Count Strongonoff, Baron Meyendorf, Baron Lieven, and the Engineer Generals Gerefeld, Todtleben, Timaschoff, Mehilkof, and Kerbedz."

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

Interesting and Comprehensive Summary of the Italian News.

From the London Times.

MILAN, Sunday, Jan. 16.

Anybody who inhabited Turin during the month ending on the 14th inst., and then transferred himself to Milan, must have felt rather surprised and amused at the striking discordance between what he heard in Piedmont and saw in Lombardy. Allowing him to be unprejudiced and for a rather incredulous turn—on his guard against Italian exaggeration and partisan misrepresentations—he still could not have been prepared to find the state of things here so different, in all outward and visible signs, from that which had been represented to him when in the Sardinian capital. He had probably read innumerable correspondence in the Turin papers representing Milan as on the verge of insurrection, and had been repeatedly assured by sanguine upholders of the Italian cause that it was with the utmost difficulty the people could be restrained from flying to arms and commencing a desperate struggle with their detested oppressors. He had heard of daring manifestations of popular feeling, of numerous collisions and street squabbles, of Austrian officers meekly enduring insult from an exasperated populace, of Austrian soldiers fraternizing with Italian patriots. Without implicitly crediting all these strange stories, he will probably have believed them to have more foundation than is left to them by his investigations on the spot. In certain back streets, it is true, groups of persons may assemble, and stones or bricks may be thrown at the heads of Austrian officers; but since the last week in November, when a large fraction of those reports may have been invented or exaggerated by persons desirous to excite apprehension, and the numerous attempts that revolution would attempt to play, have come to nought, I have not been able to detect any symptoms in Piedmont, which, on the one hand, called for precautions on the part of the authorities, or, on the other, betokened any serious danger to the tranquillity of the country. Whether this be the result of extraordinary precautions by the authorities I do not know, for no remark has been made by many besides myself as regards the precautions taken by the Austrians, the only visible one is, that the Gendarmes, who ever since 1848 have been stationed by twos in different parts of the city, chiefly in the most crowded streets and squares, now carry their bayonets fixed instead of sheathed. From this we may infer that a renewal of the cowardly assassinations of soldiers and officers perpetrated six or seven years ago in the streets of Milan has been apprehended, or at least thought possible. The fortifications at the Tosa gate, the demolition of which had been decided upon and the materials even advertised for sale, are retained for the present, and a person informed me that he had seen one or two additional guns mounted upon them. With respect to the reinforcements of troops sent into Italy from Germany, the accounts are various, and, indeed, an estimate made one week may be incorrect the next, owing to frequent successive arrivals.

The general opinion, and the one to which, after a collation of various statements, I am disposed to attach most credit, is that nearly or quite 30,000 men have come down here, and that nearly as many have left this to take up quarters in the district between this and the Sardinian frontier. Small places have received garrisons such as they rarely before witnessed; thus, for instance, I am assured there are 1,800 men at the little town of Cusatone, opposite to, and only a few miles from, Novara. This concentration of troops in the direction of Piedmont is doubtless partly intended to prevent the flight of conscripts into that country, but it may also be considered as in some sort a reply to recent hostile reports and demonstrations, and you will have learned before this reaches you that it has attracted the notice of the Sardinian Government and given rise to movements of troops on the other side of the Ticino. Besides infantry, I am informed that eight batteries of artillery have come to the Italian provinces. Some cavalry has also arrived, but in what strength I know not.

With respect to the quiet how existing here, it may be proper to say a word as to the reasons assigned for it. The increased military force and the calm, confident attitude of the authorities may be supposed to have something to do with it; and, in the same sense, importance is attached to the arrest of some 250 desperadoes, robbers, released convicts, and the most dangerous offscourings of Milan, who have been sent to Mantua to be kept under surveillance. These were the gentlemen, bearers of ready knives, and capable of any crime, who, under the mask of pretended patriotism, were ever at hand to profit by a disturbance. The city is well rid of them, and is the safer and quieter since their departure. With scarcely an exception, all the arrests made here have been of men of that class. It is not, however, entirely to the riddance of those ruffians or to the arrival of troops that the Italians attribute the present tranquility. It is rather, they say, the consequence of the French Emperor's words on the 1st of January, and of one or two other incidents, which showed the people that their cause was attracting the notice of Powers greater than their own, and that forbearance and precipitation would endanger their best interests. The aspect of the population of Milan." I was assured two days ago by a Lombard gentlemen of high position and great opportunities of observation, "was very recently ominous and alarming. There was a general feeling of irritation and excitement, which, had it been allowed to work, would have led to a rising. Now, the excitement is allayed, and the people are waiting, in the hope that the Emperor will keep his word, and that the Italian question will be settled by diplomacy. Should that hope be disappointed, and should the Austrians, by their conduct, drive the people to desperation, they will rise, and then, I believe, the Austrians will be driven out of Italy." Such were the statements made to me by persons of various political opinions, and who occupied position, and have been since enfranchised—men of greater energy and intelligence than their fellows, and who may be termed the non-commissioned officers of the revolutionary army. These men are docile to higher direction, and have lately done good service, as I am assured, in calming the irritation and passions of the multitude. These incidents have lately produced a great effect here—namely, the announcement that GARIBALDI had been intrusted by the Piedmontese Government with the formation of an Italian Legion, the words of NAPOLEON to Baron HUBNER, and the King of Sardinia's speech. I have placed them in the order of the degrees of importance I have generally assigned to them. GARIBALDI, as you have already been informed, told people of the commission he had received, and entered into details as to the mode in which the Legion was to be formed, organized, officered, &c., and declared he was going to Medelena to sell his little property and prepare for the coming campaign. The Sardinian Government did not admit the correctness of his statements, but set them down to GARIBALDI's honorable vein, and his friends and confidents said that all that had been done had been to assure that adventurer's services in case the occasion should arise for availing itself of them. People here not the less remained convinced that GARIBALDI had good authority for what he said, and it is moreover thought that in revealing the particulars in question, he did no more than the persons who confided them to him in confidence secretly intended and expected him to do. The effect of NAPOLEON's strange New Year's day greeting to the Austrian Minister was very great here; the impression it produced was doubtless quite as profound in Lombardy as in Piedmont, and subsequent attempts to explain away the menace of the words have done but little to obliterate it. The King of Piedmont's speech was accepted as an identification of its utterer with the Italian cause, but I incline to think that many people here expected something more. It, however, any slight disappointment has been felt on that score, it is counterbalanced by the pretty general belief that the speech was stronger in its terms until it had received the prudent revision of the Emperor of the French. Ills subservience to him is taken as a proof of the intimate cooperation of France and Piedmont, and as a guarantee of no preaching war with Austria. It is, therefore, the conviction of coming hostilities that is partly to be attributed the patient and prudent attitude of the Austro-Italians.

I need hardly say, for it must be evident to all, that the knot of the Italian question is at present at Paris. Both in Piedmont and in Lombardy that is thoroughly felt and acknowledged. Piedmont will certainly not begin the struggle unassisted, although if war broke out in Europe, the second shot would probably be fired by her. The Lombards, I am convinced, have not the slightest idea of fighting "on their own book." They may look sullky, and take cigars, and shout seditious words on a dark night, and at a safe distance from an Austrian sentry, but beyond that, without the certainty of powerful assistance, they will not be mad enough to go. Notwithstanding all that has been said here, and written elsewhere, about an apprehended insurrection and the like, I do not believe there has ever been risk of a serious attack upon or resistance to the constituted authorities. If, as some people hope and others apprehend, France picks a quarrel with Austria and engages in an unlooked-for war, Piedmont will join in the fight, and revolutionary attempts may be made here, if, as it is to be hoped, and as appears more probable, Napoleon adheres to his peaceable motto, and the difference between his Government and that of France seems to receive a diplomatic solution, Piedmont will remain quiet, and Lombardy will continue as before, sulky and obedient. As soon as it shall be seen that the French Government does not mean mischief, all this great effervescence in Northern Italy will quickly calm down. Even the most sanguine of my Italian friends admit this. They say that there is immense irritation throughout the country, but no chance of a movement; that all their hopes centre in France, and that if France fails them, they can do nothing. In the higher commercial circle here, which is intelligent and rather numerous, the general opinion seems to be that the recent alarm will shortly blow over, and that war there will be none. *I think I can also trace a growing idea that Austria is likely to make concessions in Italy, and the 7 per cent commutation of punishment in the unfortunate Po

THE LITERATURE OF THE DAY.

Mr. Thompson DAVIS, let me say, we are able to welcome a new and extraordinarily successful writer of fiction. Mr. Davis's style is not remarkable for originality, or for any marked peculiarity of construction. It is simple, straightforward, and unpretending. But it has the great merit of telling a story in such a way that the reader is interested in the narrative, and in the characters who are introduced to him. Mr. Davis has evidently had a large experience of life, and has the power of describing what he has seen with great clearness and force. His pictures of Western life are drawn with a firm hand, and are evidently true to nature. His humor is genial and unforced, and his pathos touches the heart without ever becoming overstrained or sentimental. In short, Mr. Davis has written a book which will be read with pleasure by every one who takes up the volume, and which will add to the reputation of its author.

Mr. Thompson DAVIS is a native of Ohio, and has evidently had considerable experience of life in the Western States of America. He has published his book in Cincinnati, and it is a matter for congratulation that a work of such merit should have appeared in the West, instead of being published in the Eastern States, as is usually the case with books which are written by Western authors. Mr. Davis has evidently a great future before him as a writer of fiction, and we shall look with interest for his next production.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Secretary THOMPSON, of the Navy, has a very attractive appearance and makes himself popular to all. The Superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., has evidently been a good selection, for I observe that while at the Academy the Secretary has been very attentive to the duties of his office, and has devoted himself to the interests of the Academy. He has also been very popular with the officers and midshipmen, and has evidently won their confidence and esteem. Secretary THOMPSON is a native of Kentucky, and is about forty-five years of age. He is a fine-looking man, and has a very pleasant address. He is a graduate of Annapolis, and has been in the Navy for many years. He is a thorough sailor, and has seen much service afloat. He is a bachelor, and lives at the Superintendent's house at the Academy. He is very popular with the officers and midshipmen, and is evidently a favorite with the Secretary of the Navy. He is a thorough gentleman in his manners, and is very much liked by all who know him. He is a man of fine abilities, and has a very bright future before him. He is a man who will make his mark in the world, and I predict for him a very successful career.

Secretary THOMPSON, of the Navy, has a very attractive appearance and makes himself popular to all. Secretary FLOYD is no more a favorite in Washington society than he will be with the officers of the army. Tall, hatchet-faced, eagle-nosed, coarse and repulsive, with a cadaverous complexion, he would be a fine subject for a first-class artist to paint. He is evidently a man of very violent temper, and has already made himself unpopular with the officers of the army. He is a native of Virginia, and is about fifty years of age. He is a bachelor, and lives at Brown's Hotel, where he has a parlor and bedroom. He is very much disliked by the officers of the army, and it is the general opinion that he will not be retained in the Cabinet after the 4th of March. I am only sorry that General FLOYD is not in town at present, as I would like to see him. I shall, however, have an opportunity of seeing him in Washington, as I intend to visit the city during the month of February. I will return to my native home on the 1st of March, and shall be glad to meet all my friends in Washington at that time.

Secretary THOMPSON, of the Interior, looks a good deal like the portrait of Napoleon I. which hangs in the conservatory of vegetables in your garden. He is a native of Kentucky, and prides himself on connection with the Polk administration. He is a fine-looking man, and has a very fine head of hair. He is a widower, and lives at Willard's Hotel. He is very popular with the officers of the army, and is considered a very clever man. He is a thorough gentleman in his manners, and is very much liked by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. He is a man of fine abilities, and has a very bright future before him. He is a man who will make his mark in the world, and I predict for him a very successful career.

Secretary TOUCEY, of the Navy, has a very attractive appearance and makes himself popular to all. He is a native of Connecticut, and is about sixty years of age. He is a bachelor, and lives at Brown's Hotel, where he has a parlor and bedroom. He is very much liked by all the officers of the army, and is considered a very clever man. The American Tyndeu Company.

What they manufacture.

THE AMERICAN SMOKER.

Consisting of a great variety of unique and beautiful patterns of Cigar Tubes; also, several varieties of Pipe Tubes. The peculiarity about these articles is that each one is arranged so as to receive a damp sponge, through which the smoke of the burning cigar or tobacco has to pass on its way to the mouth. This damp sponge not only cools the smoke, but extracts from it the nicotine oil, the poisonous property of tobacco, which renders the breath less offensive. Smokers will find in the use of these Tubes a luxury never before attained except by using the Turkish water pipe. They are will also greatly promote the health by the habitual smoker, and preserve the sweetness of the breath.

THE AMERICAN CARPET-HOOK

Is a little contrivance for putting down carpets without tacks. This is a new article, which has never before been upon the market. But it possesses the merit of enabling a person to put down or take up a carpet of the largest size in general use in fifteen minutes, without any injury to the floor or carpet. It is very cheap—cheaper in the long run than tacks—and the great facility with which even a servant can take up and put down carpets, without the possibility of a mistake, renders it invaluable to the housekeeper.

THE AMERICAN PEN-HOLDER AND WIPER

Is a new invention for holding a wet sponge, into which the pen is thrust, always coming out clean and ready for use. A very convenient article for the Counting House Desk and Library Table.

The trade generally, and especially merchants from out of town buying goods in our City, are invited to call and examine their assortments.

AMERICAN TRADES CO.,
Nos. 23 and 24 Frankfort-st.

A Proclamation!

THIRTY MILLION DOLLARS SAVED TO THE COUNTRY!

THE PRESIDENT NO LONGER THINKS OF BUYING CUBA.

Argument and entreaty are exhausted. He has now come to a very sensible conclusion, viz.: to arm one thousand men with the VOLCANIC REPEATING RIFLE, which carries thirty balls, and can be loaded and discharged thirty times in less than one minute. One thousand men, armed with this Rifle, would be equal to three thousand armed with any other weapon. If our worthy Chief Magistrate does not bestir himself the Cubans will be ahead of him, as they are now buying them in large quantities, and will soon be able to defend themselves against any force that can be brought against them. The balls are all waterproof, and consequently superior to any other arms. No changes of climate, or exposure, in weather, affects them.

COLT'S PISTOL, so long considered the surprising marvel of arms, is now fairly eclipsed by this new invention. Their beauty of construction and simplicity of movement are the wonder and admiration of all who have seen them. As we remarked a few days since, by one of the most successful inventions of the age, Mr. COLT has placed his name as a benefactor to his race, and the nation that owns a possession of such a weapon need never fear even the combined armies of the world, if their cause was just.

GUNS and PISTOLS, carrying from seven to forty balls. This arm is now on exhibition and for sale, at wholesale and retail, at the Company's depot, No. 267 Broadway, New-York.

BEAUTIFUL IMPRESS!

Have you seen BALLOU'S PICTORIAL just out. It is a little ahead of anything heretofore done in this country in the way of a perfect illustrated paper. Very handsome, new style new type, full to the brim of delightful reading matter, in the form of stories, sketches, poems and the events of the day, and a host of original engravings. In short it is just such a one as you would like to place on your centre-table, as it is the bane of the family circle, containing no vulgar caricatures, nor one vulgar line or thought to be perused.

BALLOU'S PICTORIAL has now been established many years, but it has never before reached its present degree of excellence.

FULL OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

It forms a valuable pictorial record of the events of the day, giving faithful portraits of all noted characters, with carefully prepared biographies, superb drawings of all new and elegant buildings throughout the country, views of every new Government ship and remarkable clippers of the merchant service, from original daguerreotypes and drawings made expressly for its columns. It is the

and embraces more artistic talent and literary merit in each issue than any other illustrated paper, the London News excepted. It is just the size of the London News, yet is sold for one-third the price of that journal, though it contains more matter. A larger number of its weekly issue are sent to Europe than of any other American miscellaneous journal.

Sold everywhere for Five Cents per copy.

Sent by the year for $2 50.

THE EVENING DAY BOOK.

We have recently noticed a decided improvement in the Evening Day Book, which, under the management of its new proprietors, seems to be rapidly gaining ground in our City. The Evening Day Book deserves to be better known. It is a thoroughly national paper, and always speaks out boldly in defence of the institutions of our country as they are. The idea of publishing a paper in New-York which should defend the existing institutions of the Southern States was a bold one, but the recent melancholy failure of emancipation in the West Indies has left Southern men no other alternative than to defend the justice or humanity of their system of society, or make up their minds to abandon it altogether. This the Day Book does with a degree of ability which none can question. Dr. Van Evrie, its principal political writer, has given several years of his life to a scientific examination of the question of races. Besides this, however, he enjoyed rare advantages, as surgeon in General Scott's army during the war with Mexico, to observe the effect of the mixture of the races in that distracted country. These reasons combine to make whatever appears from Dr. Van Evrie's pen upon that subject worthy of more than ordinary attention. The main idea connected with this subject is briefly this: The Day Book claims that there is no reason why the North and the South cannot harmonize their ideas upon the Slavery question, if it only be discussed in a spirit of candor and forbearance. There is much plausibility in this view of the case, and certainly such a course would be infinitely preferable to compromises, which can be but temporary, and which usually result in more mischief than benefit.

But we have wandered from our first intention, which was merely to call attention to the improved features of the Evening Day Book. It has recently had a contest with the Express in relation to which published the best and fullest report of local arrivals, which are much sought after by our merchants during the business season. The Day Book, we are compelled to say, has carried off the palm, and now publishes several more hotels than the Express. It also furnishes its readers with a careful bulletin of steamers and vessels to sail for Southern ports, and a very convenient table it is for merchants. There is not much chance for improvement upon New-York papers, but what there is in the Day Book seems determined to adopt. As a means of advertising, we believe the Evening Day Book a much better medium than some of its older contemporaries. It circulates among all our most substantial merchants, particularly those engaged in the Southern trade whose organ to a great degree, it may be fairly considered. In connection with the WEEKLY DAY BOOK, which has attained a circulation of 20,000 copies, mostly within Southern and Southwestern States, the Day Book may be looked upon as one of the institutions of New-York. It deserves to be better known to the Democracy of the City, especially the intelligent Democracy, who read, and desire a reason for the faith they profess. It is not a party organ in any sense of the term, though it is devoted to the preservation of the party as embodying the only means by which our country can be continued in its career of progress and prosperity. If there be any who desire to know more of this paper, which is certainly acquiring a commanding position in New-York, we can only say order it, (the Office is No. 49 Ann-st.,) and see if our statements are not correct.—Sunday Times.

ALL HANDS AHOY!

NED BUNTLINE'S
GREAT SEA STORY,
Entitled
SEAWAIF;
Or,
THE TERROR OF THE COAST!
A Tale of
PRIVATEERING IN 1776,
(Illustrated by Darley)
IS
IN
THE NEW-YORK MERCURY.

"ALL HANDS AND THE COOK!"

NEVER did such an excitement overtake the Continental Congress and raffle the feathers of New-Jersey! Men ran out with their hands in their pockets, ladies look out of all the parlor windows, and each representative of Young America asks his father for "four or a." While we [illegible] upon the scene with pardonable egotism, a friend whispers in our ear, and "the whisper is out." To-day THE NEW-YORK MERCURY is out with the commencement of NED BUNTLINE'S long-promised Sea-Story, entitled "SEAWAIF; Or, THE TERROR OF THE COAST.—A Tale of Privateering in 1776." To crown the excitement in full, for NED is a thoroughbred seaman, and knows how to write a story of the sea, like a second Cooper or Marryat. This magnificent nautical novelette will be illustrated by that King of Artists, DARLEY! What is Odd? The MERCURY! Whatsecond? Nothing!

MIZZEN-TOPMEN AHOY!

AN EXCITING REVOLUTIONARY SEA STORY,
By a
NAVAL OFFICER,
Illustrated by FELIX O. C. DARLEY.

NED BUNTLINE'S Greatest Nautical Romance, entitled SEAWAIF; Or, THE TERROR OF THE COAST, is now ready in the

NEW-YORK MERCURY.

"LUFF—LUFF, TILL SHE SHIVERS!"

Have you heard the news, gold-pated Douglas fought a duel, and the President is not married yet; but the number of THE NEW-YORK MERCURY, just published, contains the opening chapters of the most gorgeous nautical romance written since the days of Cooper or Marryat,—no milk-and-water botch by a "land-lubber," but a regular stirring story of "Life on the Ocean Wave," by a thorough gulp son of Neptune—by the unequaled NED BUNTLINE. This grand naval novelette is entitled SEAWAIF; Or, THE TERROR OF THE COAST. A Tale of Privateering in 1776; and is destined to create a sensation among all classes. The glowing account of battles at sea, heroic deeds, and the wars of the elements, will be illustrated by the living pencil of the world-honored FELIX O. C. DARLEY, whose wonderful illustrations of "Margaret" snatched the palm of superiority from the before-unequaled Gilbert, of London. A Sea Story by Ned Buntline, illustrated by Darley? What a feast of glorious Literary and Art treasures!

LOOK OUT FOR SHEARERS! WILL BE the cry among the would-be writers of nautical literature this morning, as they crowd the docks to see

For thrilling interest and thorough seamanship, IT IS UNRIVALED!

STAND CLEAR—THE TIGER IS LOOSE!

The public mind is excited to fever heat just now, by one of the most stirring events of the age—an event that will mark an epoch in the annals of Literature and Art. We are to enjoy a glorious story of the sea once more, after being almost smothered with the sentimental twaddle of blue-stockings, and the great magician of romance is once more upon his favorite element.
